What Door Will You Choose?

Guess what? I'm back with another motivational quote. But, before we get to that, let me give you some background as to why I've come up with this one in particular.

Most of you probably saw, but in mid-August, Santa Gertrudis Breeders International (SGBI) held a focus group. First, I'd like to extend a gigantic thank you to Rafael, James, Marilyn and the entire crew at Cherokee Ranch & Castle Foundation who made incredible hosts! There will be more information on the focus group, but the premise was this: The top 20 breeders, the SGBI Long Range Planning Committee, board of directors and at-large delegates from each district got together to think about a strategic direction for the future. Throughout the course of the focus group, there were four main topics that kept coming up – education, marketing, collaboration and innovation. While all of these are high-priority areas of importance, innovation sticks out the most to me personally.

Why? Well, because I think we have to be innovative to tackle all of the other high-priority areas I just mentioned. I gave a presentation to the focus group attendees and, to sum it up very quickly, registrations have been down the past few years. Why is that? Well, some of it has to do with things we can't control such as COVID-19 and widespread drought across the country. But the rest of the point I tried to make, and many of you have heard me say something similar, is what do we do to combat this? How can we be innovative not only in the way we approach the basic issue, but also in how we resolve it?

We all have to be innovative, we all have to agree to step out of our comfort zone a bit, and we all have to continue to keep the end goal in mind, no matter what set of doors that takes us through.

The first way is through changing the mindset. I'm not 100 percent sure where this quote came from, but someone told me once that in today's rapidly changing cattle industry, standing still is as good as moving backward. We're all guilty of being comfortable. Why would I change if I'm comfortable? Well, being comfortable is the quickest way to fall behind. That's not just in cattle production; that applies to anything in life.

That's where I get to what Jay Pritchett said in the tv series Modern Family. If you haven't seen Modern Family, check it out on Hulu because it is a hilarious sitcom that Kelsey and I watch to get a good laugh. But just like with Ted Lasso, some real inspiration can come out of the show as well. Jay is the patriarch of the family and, while he tries to be funny, he also provides a lot of the wisdom from the show. I thought this quote of his summed up my main takeaways from the focus group very well: "I've always seen life like a series of doors. Sometimes you get to choose the door you go through; sometimes you don't get that choice. But you still gotta walk through. So, you can either go kicking and screaming or walk through with your head held high."

We've gone through the doors we want to, and now I think it's time we go through the doors we have to. In order to make the things we want to do reality, we're going to have to be innovative and maybe even go down some paths that make us uncomfortable but are necessary. As you're reading this, we're probably in a board room discussing some of the ways we can invest in this innovation and plotting the path we need to take to improve, not the one we want to that is just comfortable. But that doesn't happen with just the board or a committee. It happens with ALL of you. We all have to be innovative, we all have to agree to step out of our comfort zone a bit, and we all have to continue to keep the end goal in mind, no matter what set of doors that takes us through.

There's my regularly scheduled monthly TED Talk. If you want to chat more about it and ideas for a continued strategic direction, catch me around this fall! Sale season is starting to ramp up and I hope to see you all around and continue to meet new people! Support your friends, customers and sellers and continue to work together and work for progress! And as always, remember it's about BREED improvement, not only herd improvement. 🍀

Focus on the Future

If Santa Gertrudis Breeders International (SGBI) has not arrived at the crossroads, they are certainly in view. In an industry where economies of scale provide a competitive advantage, small registries like SGBI must determine how their breed's genetic package fits into a constantly evolving industry and then determine the best approach to expanding the breed's industry footprint. Long-term viability, in an industry where economies of scale dominate, requires SGBI membership to be fully invested in the association and ready to accept the challenges of a small registry head-on.

With this thought in mind, SGBI hosted a breeders focus group at the Cherokee Ranch & Castle in mid-August to discuss challenges the association faces. At the conclusion of the two-day event, participants identified four areas that need association attention in order to keep SGBI viable and expand the breed's industry footprint.

- Education – It is important that the association develop and implement a comprehensive effort to educate all industry stakeholders about the value of Santa Gertrudis genetics.
- Marketing – Recognizing that a number of factors drive customer profitability, executing programs and activities that enhance the marketability of Santa Gertrudis genetics is essential for long-term viability. Currently, the lack of “critical mass” hampers the association's ability to grow market share, and steps must be taken to grow cattle inventory.
- Collaboration – SGBI members must set self-interest aside and be open to forming partnerships and collaborations, inside and outside the association, that will ensure profitability among commercial beef producers utilizing Santa Gertrudis genetics.
- Innovation – SGBI must be innovative and focused on creating value for all members of the beef industry chain. It can no longer be business as usual for SGBI. The association must identify innovative approaches in order to provide beef industry members with the information, tools and support needed to ensure profitability.

Of course, these four areas simply scratch the surface. There are other areas that need association attention, including revenue generation. Coming together at Cherokee Castle to discuss association needs and directions was a start toward meeting the challenges of being a small beef registry. Let's build off these findings and keep pushing forward. 🐄

FROM Friends' Kids TO Kids' Friends

Generations of Connection Thanks to SGBI

How far back can you trace your family's involvement with the Santa Gertrudis breed?

For siblings Yancey Strait and Callie (Strait) Loden of Strait Ranches, it's easy. Their great grandfather, Y.C. Strait, joined Santa Gertrudis Breeders International (SGBI) in the organization's founding year – 1951 – obtaining herd number 453, and serving as a charter member of the South Texas Santa Gertrudis affiliate.

Fast forward 72 years and five generations, SGBI is more than an annual membership renewal for the family – it's a core part of life, with emerging multi-generational traditions in leadership, connection and involvement.

Growing up on the family ranch, Yancey and Callie were involved from a young age in the National Junior Santa Gertrudis Association (NJS-GA). Yancey got his start after catching a calf in the San Antonio Livestock Show and Rodeo calf scramble and joined the junior association to show the heifer he'd won. As the saying goes, the rest is history.

It may have started with a heifer won by chance, but even after catching that calf, Yancey kept on running with the opportunities presented. He served on the NJS-GA Board of Directors and as president of the junior association. Callie took part, too, serving on the junior board and representing the Santa Gertrudis breed as a national queen.

Today, both of their families remain involved in SGBI. Callie currently serves on the Finance Committee and as co-chair of the Donated Heifer Committee. Yancey, a former SGBI president, continues to serve on the board of directors and chairs the SGBI Foundation, while his wife, Heather, is active on the Youth Activities Committee.

Over the years, though, it's become less about balancing their own schedules and more about sharing new experiences with the next generation.

Family Traditions

"Growing up, our parents didn't just encourage us to get involved," Callie says. "They got involved right along with us."

Today, Yancey and Heather work with Callie and her husband, Jake, to carry on the tradition alongside their mom, Cynthia, who remains active in the South Texas affiliate organization and supports her grandchildren as they get their start in NJS-GA activities.

Callie and Jake's daughters, Piper (11) and Nellie (9), are already taking part in a number of NJS-GA contests alongside Yancey and Heather's daughters, Avery (15) and Arden (12).

"It has been so refreshing, wonderful and fun to watch our kids build these great friendships just like we did and gain so much confidence in themselves," Callie says.

"To watch our friends' kids become our kids' friends ... we grew up together and now we get to watch our kids grow up together, too. It's an incredibly special experience."

It Starts With A Decision

"In our family, prior generations were not as active in the organization as we have become," Yancey says. "Members, yes, but our involvement on a larger scale really didn't start until Callie and I joined the youth organization."

If your family is new to Santa Gertrudis and wondering how to get started, the Strait and Loden families say to dive on in.

"We were all the new kids on the block at some point," Cynthia says. "We welcome anybody who wants to be a part of making our breed and our kids better by stepping up and getting involved."

"If one of us is successful, we're all successful," Callie continues. "Joining SGBI is about seeing the big picture, and it's a privilege to be a part of it. What benefits us, benefits everyone, and we're all better for it."

Cultivating Community

"When we were new to the organization, I was learning right alongside the kids," Cynthia says. I loved watching their successes and seeing the relationships they were building."

"Most of all," she continues, "I love that everybody cheers for everybody. We still cherish those friendships we have made along the way, and it's exciting to see my granddaughters having some of those same great experiences."

Being involved with SGBI, especially at the youth level, provides so many opportunities for learning, relationship building and personal growth. From contests in public speaking to brain bowl, livestock judging, cattleman's contest and photography, to leadership opportunities on the junior board and the chance to serve as breed royalty are just a few of the many possibilities open to youth in the organization. As the fifth generation now taking part in the family business, the Strait and Loden girls are following in their parents' footsteps as active members.

"It's amazing to see what they have accomplished as they've gotten older and more involved," Cynthia says. "Both of Yancey and Heather's daughters have been national princess. Avery is vice president of the junior board, and she has attended GOALS multiple times. Callie and Jake's daughters are taking on a number of contests and learning so much every step of the way."

Shared Goals

Having been involved with SGBI in so many different roles over the years, Yancey is a firm believer that there is a seat at the table for anyone who wants to be involved.

"If you're new, or considering getting involved in a bigger way, know that you are always welcome. We may all be making different decisions for our respective herds, but at the end of the day, we all have the same goals: improving the cattle we're raising, ensuring Santa Gertrudis has a place in the industry and continuing to market in ways that earn us the value we know our cattle deserve," Yancey says.

"When we recognize that we have much more to benefit from common goals than competition, it's easier to reach out to one another, start conversations and identify new opportunities that will make us all better," he says.

Long-Lasting Legacies

Now watching a second generation of the Strait and Loden kids get involved in youth activities, Cynthia stays involved with the South Texas junior affiliate and serves on the South Texas adult affiliate board. She and her husband, Y.N., had been active in encouraging the family's involvement over the years, and she continues to carry on the tradition.

When Y.N. passed away in 2021, the family established a memorial scholarship in his name with the National Santa Gertrudis Youth Foundation, providing academic opportunities for youth who are involved with the breed.

"What a blessing it is to get to do what your father did, what his father did and what his father did," Yancey says. "We count our blessings every day and are so grateful for the opportunities that have been provided to our family. We know Dad would be proud to support the successes of our next generation of Santa Gertrudis leaders."

"The Santa Gertrudis breed is our foundation and our focus," Callie says. "It always will be. It's just that important." 🌿

5 REASONS TO GET INVOLVED WITH SGBI

1. You love the cattle

"We love the cattle. We love the people," Callie says. "We have a vested interest in making sure the Santa Gertrudis breed remains strong so our children can be a fifth generation of Santa Gertrudis breeders."

2. You want a bright future for the next generation

One of SGBI's key missions is to secure the breed's place in the beef cattle industry, protecting future generations and ensuring prosperous opportunities for Santa Gertrudis cattle.

3. You're ready to give back

From relationships to confidence to knowledge and skills, the opportunities youth members have to develop as leaders and individuals will only make them stronger advocates for the breed as adults.

4. Opportunities to have your voice heard

Volunteers are always welcomed and needed in a variety of roles. Being involved means playing a part in the future of the breed and the organization.

5. Cooler dinner table conversations

"The kids in our family are actively engaged in what we do on the ranch," Cynthia says. "Dinner table conversations are often about breeding decisions, which cow looks best in the pen, who is going to run the ranch one day and who begs to differ. It's a whole new level of fun and reminds you why you chose this way of life to begin with."

New De-Wormer Enters Market

Zoetis released a novel combination anthelmintic this past summer called Valcor. This new product requires a veterinary prescription and offers broad-spectrum control of both internal and external parasites (grubs, lice and mites). In a study conducted by Zoetis involving more than 1,500 five-weight heifers, Valcor reduced fecal egg count by 99.9 percent within two weeks post treatment vs. an 85 percent reduction by a very common anthelmintic available from multiple livestock pharmaceutical companies.

Valcor is a single, subcutaneous injection product that contains doramectin and levamisole. The dosage of Valcor is 1 milliliter (mL) per 55 pounds of body weight. Each mL of Valcor contains 5 milligrams (mg) doramectin and 150 mg of levamisole. These ingredients cause paralysis (levamisole paralyzes worms) and death (doramectin kills nerve cells) of 35 different parasites. Interestingly, levamisole mimics a natural molecule and over-stimulates muscle cell receptors for that molecule. The overstimulation of parasite muscle cells causes paralysis. Doramectin modulates the chloride (the same chloride in table salt, NaCl) ion channels of neurons so they cannot function normally.

So why must we obtain a prescription for Valcor? One could assume it is because we all need to work together on reducing the chance for parasite resistance to this new product. Drug resistance of internal parasites is caused by treating cattle too often, treating the whole herd (vs. those cattle that need it) and under-dosing. Moreover, this new product is approved only for use in beef and dairy cattle and not small ruminant livestock. Beef cattle of at least 2 months of age or older and dairy replacement heifers younger than 20 months of age can be treated with Valcor. However, the safety of Valcor for use in breeding bulls has not been evaluated. So for now, use it on beef steers, beef heifers and beef cows only. My gut feeling is that most new livestock pharmaceutical products in the future will require a veterinary prescription. The Food and Drug Administration and U.S. Department of Agriculture are encouraging all livestock producers to establish a veterinarian-client-patient relationship with a local veterinarian. This model has been established with the purchase and use of livestock antibiotics.

Valcor is available in 100-mL, 250-mL and 500-mL bottles and should be comparably priced to other anthelmintics. I priced it at $0.41 to $0.49 per mL; it is cheaper to purchase the larger bottles. That equals about $9 for a 1,200-pound cow or $4.10 for a 550-pound calf. Please remember that Valcor is to be given subcutaneously in the neck area. This product does have a 15-day slaughter withdrawal and could cause injection-site swelling. This possible swelling makes the neck area of cattle the most appropriate site for injection.

Valcor comes with a 45-day expiration after initially puncturing the vial. Zoetis recommends using a luer-lock syringe and an 18-gauge needle for injecting this product. In addition, Zoetis recommends puncturing the stopper top only six times and a maximum of 28 times in the 100-mL and 250-mL or 500-mL bottles of Valcor, respectively. If producers choose to use a multi-draw apparatus with a spike or needle larger than an 18-gauge bore diameter, then any remaining product should be discarded after initial use. Keep in mind that, because of this recommendation, treating larger herds could get expensive.

New and improved beef cattle pharmaceutical products do not come to market that often. Give Valcor a try while it is available and in stock, especially if you believe that your current de-worming protocol may have a weakened efficacy over time. This new combination product should have cattle internal parasites running for cover. 🐾

ACTIVITY REPORTS

YOUTH ACTIVITIES COMMITTEE • Trai Stegall, Chair

The 2024 National Junior Santa Gertrudis Show, "The Great Gert Games," will be June 16-22 in Little Rock, Ark. Major rule changes our committee has made are:

There are new ownership deadlines: Nov. 1 for purebred female classes 15 to 24, STAR 5 female classes 6 to 9 and purebred bull classes 8 and 9. The ownership deadline for all other classes is May 1. These went into effect immediately.

For the 2024 Herdsman Contest, one head per exhibitor is required to be brought into the barn, but can bring as many as affiliate will allow.

For the 2024 Brain Bowl contest, members will draw for their seat on their team.

Purebred Female Class 23 was split into two classes: Class 23, Oct. 1, 2021-Dec. 31, 2021; and Class 24, July 1, 2021-Sept. 30, 2021. 🐾

SGBI BUSINESS

NJSGS Ownership Deadline

The ownership deadline for cattle exhibiting in the 2024 National Junior Santa Gertrudis Show in Purebred Female classes 15–24, STAR 5 Female classes 6–9 and Bull classes 8–9 is Nov. 1, 2023. All other classes' ownership deadline is May 1, 2024. Class 23 in the Purebred Female Show has been split into two classes: Class 23 will be Oct. 1, 2021–Dec. 31, 2021, and Class 24 will be July 1, 2021–Sept. 30, 2021.

Payment Required for Certificates

To ensure that you receive your certificates and completed work in a timely manner, please ensure you have a credit card on file or pay upon receipt. Our standard turnaround time on work is 24 hours. However, we will not release work until SGBI has received payment. If you are unsure what you owe, please view the new and improved self-billing worksheet on the SGBI website. In addition, members can also generate their own invoices/detailed statements through the "Account" tab on their DigitalBeef profile. We can also easily provide a printed or emailed invoice.

AI Certificate Program

If you are selling semen on an AI sire that is enrolled in the AI certificate program, you can issue AI certificates yourself! Please visit the "AI Certificate" tab, click on "Issue new AI certificate" and issue out the number of semen straws (certificates) you have sold to another SGBI member. For all out-of-herd ET registrations: breeders issuing ET certificates can visit the "Embryo Certificate" tab, click on "Issue new ET certificate" and fill in the sire/dam registration number, breeding and flush dates (if available), number of certificates that were sold and the herd number of the member receiving the certificates. If you have any questions on how to issue certificates, please contact Emma at the SGBI office.

2024 Annual Meeting

The 2024 SGBI Annual Meeting will be April 25–27 in Myrtle Beach, S.C. Watch for more information in future issues of Santa Gertrudis Source and on SGBI's website and social media channels.

As always, if you have any questions or require any assistance, please do not hesitate to contact us at the SGBI office at (361) 592-9357. 🐄

Q: WHERE WAS YOUR FIRST NJSGS AND HOW MANY HAVE YOU ATTENDED?

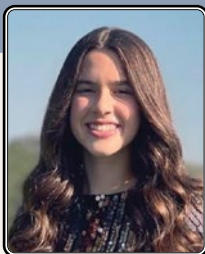

A: The very first National Junior Santa Gertrudis Show (NJSGS)

I can remember attending was in 2015 when a cow named Miss Yancey won Grand Champion. My sister and I thought we were so cool because we got to be in the back-drop photo. When the junior national issue of Santa Gertrudis USA came out, we couldn't believe that we were actually in a magazine. That was definitely the highlight of first grade.

Just two years later, I showed at my first NJSGS in Lake Charles, La. I was just 8 years old and had absolutely no idea what I was doing. I don't remember a whole lot from the show, other than the heat, but I do remember how much I looked up to the directors. I thought they were so cool because they helped with everything. Whether it was Survivor, contests or just simply supporting exhibitors in the ring, knowing that a director was around kind of soothed my nerves.

It has been quite a bit of time since my very first NJSGS and, after about six more years of attending my favorite show of the year, I still don't know what is going on sometimes.

Now I'm a director and a role model for the younger kids. Little 8-year-old me would not believe where I am now. 🐾

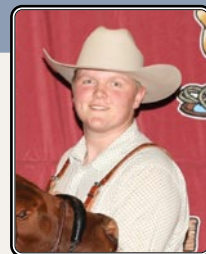

Q: WHO INSPIRED YOU TO BECOME AN NJSGA BOARD MEMBER?

A: Getting involved on the national level can be intimidating. I have been fortunate to have two people who pushed me to go outside my comfort zone and mentored me in ways to lead. Trai Stegall has been my biggest encourager and mentor in all things Santa Gertrudis. Not only did he sell me my first Santa Gertrudis heifer, he immediately got me involved in my local 4-H club and Mississippi affiliate. He has taught me to be kind to everyone, work hard and leave the breed better than I found it. I am thankful that he still helps me every step of the way.

Next, McRae Clay set the standard for what a junior director should be. At my first National Junior Santa Gertrudis Show, she walked with me every step of the way when I had a heifer that did not want to be shown. She always has a smile for everyone and endless dedication to her cherry red cattle and our junior show. She is still there working at every show and leading us all by example.

Serving this breed has been an incredible experience that has given me countless opportunities and lifelong skills that will help me the future. My desire is that I can be the reason that someone wants to be a junior director. 🐾
