EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S REPORT

By John Ford

(361) 592-9357 | jford@santagertrudis.com

The good old days. We all have fond memories associated with different times of our lives, times that stood out as special. We think of those periods with great affection and we enjoy reflecting on them. But sometimes our memories become selective when we reminisce about the good old days. I often recall a pickup I had in the late '70s. It had a brown exterior and a yellowish tan interior, no air conditioner, no power windows, no radio, three on the column, vinyl seats, no cruise control and no headliner. But in my memory, it was the sweetest vehicle I have ever owned. Although that old pickup is long gone, with each passing year its handling, comfort and gas mileage improves in my mind. However, as fond as my memory of that pickup might be, you couldn't get me in a vehicle today without air conditioning, cruise control and power everything. As my memory circles back to reality, I recognize that 1975 C-10 Chevrolet was a solid ride when I was in college, but it certainly would not fit the demands and needs of today's pickup owner.

Seedstock producers are not immune to the good-old-days syndrome. It is easy to recall bulls from the 1980s and 1990s that captured our attention. Unfortunately, time glosses over the actual performance or less than perfect phenotypes of some of these older sires. In our desire to re-capture those traits, remembered in our minds as exceptional, decisions to utilize these genetic packages are based on memory and emotion. Just like that old pickup, seedstock producers need to seriously consider if genetics that are 25 and 30 years old meet the needs of today's beef industry. Some might, but let's be honest: most fall short.

In our breed, this is especially true from a carcass quality standpoint. A sampling of active bulls calved between Jan. 1, 1990 and Jan. 31, 1995 found that 65 percent had negative marbling expected progeny differences (EPDs), and they placed near or at the bottom of the August 2017 marbling percentile rankings. Tremendous improvements in the breed's suite of measured traits have been made over the years and breeders should no longer be reaching deep in the tank in search of profitable Santa Gertrudis genetics.

Santa Gertrudis Breeders International offers its members and cattle-buying customers one of the industry's most comprehensive genetic evaluations, a tool that removes the guesswork and allows profitable mating decisions to be made. Thousands of scan records and more than 7,000 genotypes validated on 10K, 20K and 50K SNP chips support the evaluation. It's fun to stroll down memory lane, but utilizing the breed's reliable EPDs in the selection process is the fastest way to make genetic improvement, hit industry targets and meet consumer demands. Herd improvement can only be reached through a planned breeding program based on sound genetic information and valid performance data.

In addition to utilizing current proven sires, implementing a program to sample young sires provides the opportunity to identify genetic leaders of the future. The difference between proven sires and young sires is simply a matter of accuracy due to data. As more data from a bull's progeny are included in the breed's genetic evaluation, accuracy increases. Once the accuracy reaches a certain point, the bull is considered a "proven sire." Prior to that, the bull is included in the "young sire" category. A young sire will have a lower accuracy than a proven sire, but that does not automatically make him substandard. After all, high-accuracy sires were once young, unproven, low-accuracy bulls. If a young, low-accuracy bull has a curve-bending EPD, it is unlikely that his EPD will shift enough to make him less desirable than a proven sire with an average or below average EPD.

It's fun to reminisce, but improvement of the next generation calf crop is dependent upon the breeding decisions being made today. Herd sire selection should be a thought-provoking and profit-driven decision process, not a memory exercise. 🐄

Need to Know

New Allflex Tissue Sampling Application

Members collecting DNA samples with the Allflex Tissue Sampling Applicator will want to check out the new Allflex Smart List app. The app allows producers to tie all herd data together on a smart phone; up to three devices can be connected, including RFID Reader and Bar Code Scanner for DNA collected with a tissue sampling unit. This exciting tool creates lists and scans tags, and exports data using Bluetooth technology.

Texas Beef Cattle Science Center, SGBI's partner for animal health and nutrition supplies, reminds members that maintenance, growth, lactation and reproduction cannot be optimized where mineral intake is not properly balanced. SGBI members wishing to take advantage of the association discount on lick tubs and mineral supplement should contact Wayne Mikeska directly at (830) 864-4729 or (830) 992-1851. 🐄

PRESIDENT'S LETTER

By Yancey Strait

(972) 841-0989 | yancey_strait@yahoo.com

I am proud to be a member of Santa Gertrudis Breeders International and proud to raise Santa Gertrudis cattle. I think of the longevity and hardiness bred into our cattle and relate this to our breeders and association. I would like to thank our membership for supporting this organization and each other.

I know that our membership is focused on improving our cattle. This is an effort that takes both time and economic commitment, but this improvement has allowed us to gain market share and increase acceptance in this progressive business. Word of mouth has always played a big role in the cattle business. When commercial cattlemen are bragging on their Santa Gertrudis bulls and STAR 5 calves, we are receiving validation for our efforts. We must continue to prove our genetics in the pasture, at the sale barn, in the feedlot and on the rail. I believe that university research projects add an additional layer of proof, or validation, of our breed's strengths. We are beginning a re-entry into university-backed research with the addition of Santa Gertrudis genetics at both Auburn University and Utah State University. It is my hope that this assists us with marketing our cattle to breeders who have never before used or considered Santa Gertrudis genetics.

The Santa Gertrudis Foundation has been seeking ways to strengthen its portfolio to allow for increased involvement in research and education-related activities. The Legacy Lot program was recently introduced by the Santa Gertrudis Foundation and the Santa Gertrudis Youth Foundation. I would like to thank our initial donors, Allen and Karen Ginnard, BlackJack Oaks Ranch, Texas, who have donated Legacy Lot I and consigned her to the Mid Coast Opportunity Sale; and Rance and Kathy Reynolds, Reynolds Prairie View Farms, Oklahoma, who have donated Legacy Lot II and consigned her to the Arkoma Santa Gertrudis Sale. All proceeds from these lots will go to the Santa Gertrudis Foundation. We are extremely grateful that these breeders have chosen to support the Santa Gertrudis Foundation and future research/education endeavors. An article on both breeders can be found in the November issue of Santa Gertrudis USA.

This last month has been extremely difficult for many of our breeders located in the Gulf Coast region. Please continue to pray for all impacted by Hurricane Harvey. 🙏

COACH TO ENTREPRENEUR TO CATTLEMAN: The Legacy of Delmo Payne

By Kelsey Pope, Freelance Writer

BORN AND RAISED IN THE CATTLE BUSINESS IN TUPELO, MISS., Delmo Payne has always had an eye for quality cattle. A prominent leader in the Santa Gertrudis industry, Payne has established a legacy of superior cattle over the years, been involved in the association and been inducted into the SGBI Hall of Fame.

When he was growing up, Payne's father had a commercial cattle business through which he bought and sold cattle. As a youth getting ready to start college, Payne displayed a passion for sports and coaching. He attended Mississippi State, where he earned his bachelor's degree in biological science.

Out of college, he started teaching biology and coaching.

"I loved coaching basketball and the relationships I had with the kids," Payne says.

He later earned his master's degree in school administration and supervision, and went on to become school principal and serve on the school administration for several years. He and his wife, Wilmoth, were traveling to California when Payne first saw Santa Gertrudis cattle.

"We were traveling as educational consultants when I saw my first Santa Gertrudis cattle herd," Payne recalls. "I just fell in love with those beautiful cattle in 1968 and I never forgot that sight."

Payne loved education and coaching, but other doors opened for him as an entrepreneur.

"I had two small children, and teaching and coaching weren't enough to support my family, so I chose to go into manufacturing homes," Payne says.

In 1973, Payne moved to Hamilton, Ala., and went into business for himself. He opened up Payne Home and Auto and was active with the business until the fall of 2001.

Payne opened up North River Homes in 1981 and ran that business until retiring in 1994. He got back into manufacturing homes in 1997, when he started River Birch Homes, and retired from that business just this year. He is proud to have been in the home manufacturing business for 35 years.

In 1983, those beautiful cattle he remembered from 15 years previously came back into his life. Payne purchased a herd of Santa Gertrudis cattle from Anne Upchurch of Grey Rocks Ranch, near Selma, Ala., and started Grandview Farms. Over time, he purchased four different ranch locations in which his herd grew to 300 cows: 200 purebred and 100 commercial and recipient cows.

Raising cattle has been the hardest business I've been in, but I love it the most. God has been good to me and my family, and I give Him all of the credit.

— Delmo Payne

Payne and four other breeders came together in 1988 to begin the Alabama Connection Sale, a production sale of quality Santa Gertrudis cattle. This fall will mark the 29th annual sale and Grandview Farms, as well as Tinney Farms, Hanceville, Ala., and Grey Oaks Farm, Russellville, Ala., will sell a combined 67 lots.

A few years after starting that sale, Payne and other breeders started the Crimson Classic Sale, which provided an outlet for many of his "Alabama Connection" customers to market their cattle. This sale is hosted each spring and sells around 100 lots of purebred and STAR 5 cattle.

"There is a tremendous demand for STAR 5 Santa Gertrudis cattle for commercial producers," Payne says. "Commercial cattlemen have been wise over the years because they make a profit on how much growth they can get from their calves, and they are doing that with these genetics."

Santa Gertrudis females are highly sought-after cattle; Payne sells about 70 percent of his progeny to seedstock producers and 30 percent to commercial producers.

"What keeps purebred breeders like me in business is the ability to market to commercial producers," Payne says. "You can breed a Santa Gertrudis bull to just about any type of cow."

Improving the genetics and expected progeny differences (EPDs) of his cattle has been a goal for Payne. With the help of his ranch manager, Brent Shaw, and herdsman, Seth Holmes, he has been using artificial insemination for many years and started embryo transfer over the last few years. More recently, Payne has found in-vitro fertilization (IVF) technology to work well.

THE LEGACY OF DELMO PAYNE

"We're finding we have more production with IVF technology than with conventional or even embryo transfer," Payne says. "I like that we don't have to use shots; we can work a donor cow every three weeks and pull an unfertilized egg, which takes advantage of our genetically superior animals."

Using EPDs and CattleMax software, Payne has been able to match a strong set of bulls to breed to a cow with a weaker set of EPDs. While EPDs and genetics are important, Payne also focuses on the phenotype of his seedstock.

"Some breeders only breed by the numbers, but if the animal is not phenotypically correct, the numbers don't matter – we need both," Payne adds. "By breeding for numbers and looks, we are developing predictability."

Traits in the Santa Gertrudis breed that Payne is breeding for are low birthweight bulls, good weaning and yearling weights, total maternal traits from the female and high marbling numbers for terminal animals. Grandview Farms places a great deal of emphasis on quality characteristics like natural muscling and structural correctness. Breeding for these traits has paid off, as Grandview Farms has produced many show winners, including multiple National Champions.

"We are trying to develop good carcass weights along with sound maternal traits," Payne says. "Through genomic testing, we can actually predict our growth index to increase the potential dollar value."

Overall, Payne's goals with his operation are striving for quality, value and service for his customers.

"I know that a very important part of marketing pure-bred cattle is providing that service to our customers," Payne says. "Without repeat customers, we wouldn't be in business."

Payne's involvement and service in SGBI has provided opportunities to be more involved with his customers and meet some remarkable breeders.

"I have met so many friends through the Santa Gertrudis breed and love the people, which is the reason why I served the association," Payne says.

He served on the breed standards committee, as vice president of marketing and on several other committees, and on the county and state level, as well as serving as the association's president in the late 1990s.

"Santa Gertrudis breeders are some of the best people in the United States," Payne says.

Payne says his family has been a support system along the journey. His family includes his wife, Wilmuth, and two daughters, Emma Kate Mikels and her husband, Brad, along with their three children, Reed, Garrett and Caroline, and daughter Molly Ainsworth and her husband, Brad, along with their three children, Warren, Will and Stewart. Payne is proud of his family and grandkids; the oldest started college and the youngest started first grade this year. The family enjoys spending time on the ranch in the summers.

Going from teacher and coach to entrepreneur and cattleman, Payne exhibits an evident love for the cattle business.

"Raising cattle has been the hardest business I've been in, but I love it the most," he says. "God has been good to me and my family, and I give Him all of the credit." 🙏

What is the Value of Membership?

By John Ford, Executive Director, Santa Gertrudis Breeders International

AH, THE BENEFITS OF MEMBERSHIP. If you have a particular credit card, the benefit is additional airline miles, or so we are told on the television commercials. The benefit of membership in a certain farm organization is a price reduction when purchasing a new pickup. Certainly, these types of perks are alluring and provide some value to an organization's membership. However, the benefits of membership in an organization should have greater value than a discount on a purchase of merchandise or a free night in a chain motel. The benefit of membership in an organization has more to do with "THE BIG PICTURE" than short-term personal gain.

Since its inception in 1951, the focus of Santa Gertrudis Breeders International has been breed improvement, establishment and maintenance of a registry system, and the dissemination of information for the purpose of marketing and promotion. Over the years, the fundamental role of SGBI has not changed; however, in a constantly evolving world, especially in a beef industry that is rapidly changing and highly competitive, SGBI, like the vast majority of breed associations, has departed from the traditional ways of conducting business and become more focused on roles that relate to the economic success of membership and their cattle-buying customers.

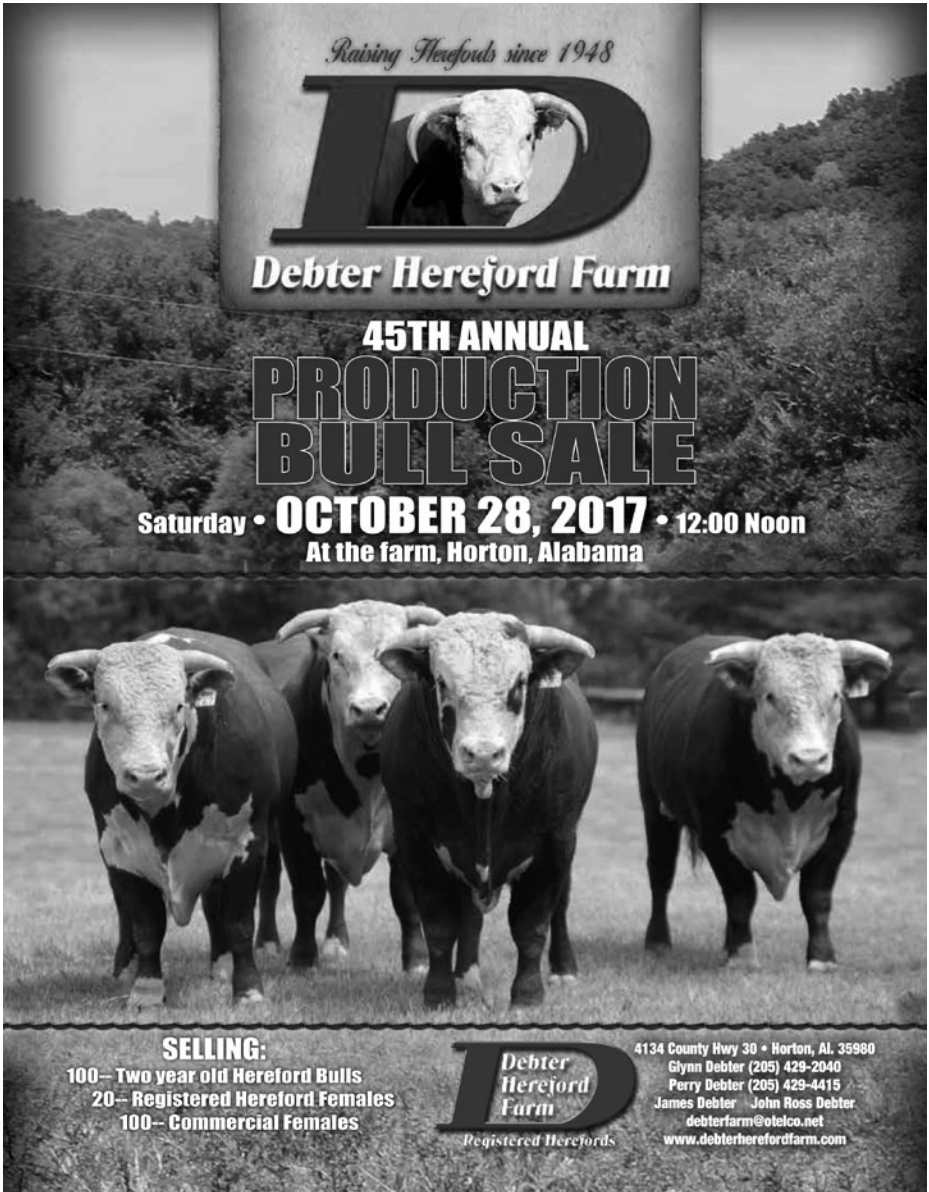

Industry experts agree that long-term beef breed association sustainability depends on three items: 1) storing and managing the breed's data and records, 2) maintaining a cutting-edge genetic evaluation, so members and their customers can make improved breeding decisions, and 3) distributing genetic and breed-specific information to members in an efficient and timely fashion. During the last 5-year period, SGBI has made great strides with the development of a cutting-edge genetic evaluation that validates the breed's ability to perform profitably in all sectors of the beef industry. The tools are in place for cattle-buying customers to identify the genetics that best fit their operations, and the Santa Gertrudis breed has a growing industry presence. These advances would not have been possible without Board leadership, committee involvement and member input. However, association members and leaders, working as a team, must continue to look forward, embrace positive change and initiate programs that allow membership to capture a greater share of the commercial cattle market.

In big-picture terms, what are the benefits of being a member of Santa Gertrudis Breeders International? A benefit of membership is the knowledge that is available to members through a number of learning opportunities, including the monthly columns with a production focus that appear in Santa Gertrudis USA. There is no doubt that increased knowledge assists members in remaining current in a rapidly changing industry. Another benefit of membership is access to the technology needed in order to remain competitive in an increasingly competitive industry. Whether the technology is genetic, web-based or another type, it is designed to improve the breed and strengthen marketing opportunities. A third benefit of membership is the positive message the association provides to key industry players. Contacts with industry movers and shakers, as well as university and research personnel, have a long-term impact on the breed's standing in the industry. A positive comment by influential industry leaders can skyrocket a breed to the forefront, while a negative comment can push a breed out of the industry picture.

SANTA GERTRUDIS Production 2016 NATIONAL BEEF QUALITY AUDIT RESULTS

By Randy L. Stanko, Ph.D., Texas A&M University-Kingsville

Earlier this summer, the results of the most recent National Beef Quality Audit (2016 NBQA) were released. Most of us are probably familiar with the acronym BQA and know that it represents Beef Quality Assurance, a voluntary, industry-driven program designed to provide cattle producers with a set of “best practices” for producing safe and high-quality beef. The Beef Quality Assurance program is also designed to provide consumers with the assurance that beef products are wholesome, delicious and nutritious.

Since 1991, every four to six years our beef checkoff dollars fund an in-depth look at the beef industry. The three elements in the 2016 audit included face-to-face interviews with individuals involved with the cattle feeding sector and retail and food service sectors. The audit also evaluated 8,000 live slaughter cattle and 25,000 carcasses (approximately 50 percent of one day’s production) in multiple packing plants. The final component to the 2016 NBQA was a strategy workshop with more than 70 representatives from all sectors of the beef industry.

I encourage all cattle producers to read the NBQA results, or at least the four-page summary, both of which can be found at www.bqa.org. Priority of beef quality challenges from the report included, in order: 1) food safety, 2) eating satisfaction, 3) lean, fat and bone, 4) weight and size of cattle, 5) how and where cattle were raised, and 6) visual beef characteristics. Nearly 97 percent of slaughter cattle surveyed had no evidence of lameness and walked normally and easily. Only 2.4 percent of carcass bruising required 10 pounds of trimming or more. More cattle were not branded and more cattle had no horns than did; however, more than 30 percent of harvested livers did not pass inspection and were condemned.

Interestingly, there was a decrease in black-hided cattle (57.8 percent versus 61.1 percent) and an increase in Holstein-type cattle (20.4 percent versus 5.5 percent) processed when compared to the 2011 NBQA, respectively. It should come as no surprise that our cattle carcasses are getting heavier. Audit results showed a 20.7 percent increase in carcasses weighing more than 900 pounds as compared to 2011. This translated into the lowest number of cattle slaughtered in several years, yet total U.S. beef production was increased. The audit results also revealed a full 10 percent increase (71 percent versus 61 percent) in the frequency of carcasses grading Prime and Choice as compared to 2011, partly due to the increase in dairy-type cattle processed in 2016. A little less than 4 percent of the carcasses surveyed graded Prime, with only 30 percent of these cattle having a Yield Grade of 4 or 5. Unfortunately, a similar percentage (3.6 percent) of carcasses surveyed did not qualify for a quality grade.

So how does all of this audit data translate to the seedstock cattle producer?

I think we should concentrate on two issues – one positive and one that may be concerning in the future. I believe all cattle breeds have improved the genetics for intramuscular fat deposition, which has enhanced quality grade performance, irrespective of the larger number of dairy-type cattle processed last year. That is definitely a positive. However, if our cattle continue to increase in size, carcass weight and size may reach a point where ribeye area is simply too big. We need to remember that beef consumers generally prefer thick steaks with an optimum surface area to be economically affordable.

Lastly, I would like to highlight a Colorado State University College of Veterinary Medicine study that I found deep within the Beef Quality Assurance™ Manual on the BQA website. Briefly, the researchers injected (intramuscularly) two of eight compounds, one into the top sirloin and one into the outside round of 20 beef heifers at weaning. Compounds included saline, respiratory vaccines, 7-way clostridial vaccine, Vitamin A-D-E and three different antibiotics. Heifers were processed into beef 178 days after compound administration. All compounds caused injection site lesions and a loss of tenderness to some degree. Most alarming was the volume of toughened muscle tissue around the injection sites. Tough muscle tissue volume ranged from 44.8 to 63.6 cubic inches in the outside round and from 18.9 to 49.5 cubic inches in the top sirloin. The bottom line is that one injection site affects the tenderness of muscle tissue (meat) up to 3 to 4 inches away in all directions. Please minimize the number of intramuscular injections administered, especially in cattle that may soon enter the beef supply, and if you must administer an intramuscular injection, do so in the neck region with properly-sized needles (1-1.5 inches and 16/18 gauge). 🐄

A benefit of membership is access to cutting-edge research that is designed to increase demand for Santa Gertrudis genetics by adding value in the commercial sector. Prime examples of this type of activity include the current heterosis research project being conducted by Utah State University and supported by SGBI and the ongoing work with GeneSeek to develop cutting-edge, breed-specific genetic tools. The greatest benefit of membership is the ability to multiply the effort of one by the efforts of hundreds in order to accomplish a common goal.

SGBI does not offer a free stay in a popular motel or frequent flyer miles for renewing membership on an annual basis. What SGBI does offer members are the tools needed to be profitable and sustainable in a rapidly changing industry. Membership does have its privileges. 🐄

Data Driven – Profit Proven

Add value to your Santa Gertrudis purchase: Get the registration papers!

Genetic information - Performance data - Generations of pedigrees

- The accuracy and dependable data of Santa Gertrudis cattle paves the path to profitability for producers and feeders.
- Santa Gertrudis influenced cattle give a proven profit boost from heterosis in the yard, on the rail and in the harshest environments.
- “The Santa Gertrudis cattle that we manage and feed perform as well or better than any other cattle we handle. We’ve had Santa Gertrudis cattle gain almost 4 pounds a day. Feed conversion ratio is certainly low-6, sometimes high-5.”
— John Josserand, AzTx Cattle Co.

Services to individuals, corporations, partnerships and firms that are not members of SGBI are limited to the transfer and classification of previously registered Santa Gertrudis at substantially higher rates.

Assigned herd numbers with SGBI are nontransferable, except with the approval of the Board of Directors. The membership and herd number held by a member of a family who dies or retires from the purebred Santa Gertrudis business may be transferred to another member of the same family.

BRIGGS RANCHES

A Longtime Tradition

By Jessie Topp-Becker, Managing Editor

When R.W. Briggs, Sr. founded Briggs Ranches in the early 1940s, Santa Gertrudis cattle were not the foundation cattle on the operation. Purebred Hereford cattle roamed the Texas ranch until he purchased Santa Gertrudis bulls from the King Ranch in 1942. The following year, he purchased 150 Santa Gertrudis females from Richard King and two other sources closely related to the King Ranch. Those females formed the foundation for the Santa Gertrudis herd at Briggs Ranches.

R.W. Briggs, Sr.

TOP: Briggs Ranches has raised Santa Gertrudis cattle in Texas for 75 years. Today, they raise 600-800 head of purebred Santa Gertrudis on their three ranch locations.

In the early years, Briggs did experimental crossing of Santa Gertrudis bulls on Hereford and Braford cows. After observing the second-cross calf crops, Briggs decided to abandon the Santa Gertrudis-Braford cross, “not because they were not good animals, but because we thought the straight Santa Gertrudis cross was better,” the late Briggs explained in an article he wrote for The Cattleman in 1985. Over time, Briggs Ranches transitioned its herd to purebred Santa Gertrudis. Today, between the three ranch locations, they maintain 600-800 purebred Santa Gertrudis cows and 50 head of purebred Angus cows.

Briggs Ranches’ first location was the Broken X Ranch near San Antonio, Texas, which was purchased in the early 1940s (this property was sold in 1985). A short time later, the second location – San Roque Ranch located south west of Cotulla, Texas – was purchased. This 25,000-acre property remains one of the current three ranch locations. The 8,000-acre Traylor Ranch is located southeast of Victoria, Texas; this location is the headquarters for all Briggs Ranches operations. The final division of the ranch is San Carlos Ranch, which is located near Rio Grande City, Texas and consists of 6,000 acres.

Given the diverse climate in which Briggs Ranches is located, Briggs felt Santa Gertrudis cattle were an ideal fit. “Considering our climate and ranch conditions, we thought it commercially advisable to stock our ranches with Santa Gertrudis cattle,” he explained in the article.

Joe Jones, longtime general manager of Briggs Ranches, explains that the three ranch locations range from the Gulf Coast area to dry southwest Texas, so rainfall and range conditions vary tremendously. On an annual basis, the Traylor division receives 40-45 inches of rain, the San Roque division receives 18 inches of rain and the San Carlos division receives 9 inches of rain. “We are one of the oldest breeders in the business. These cattle fit our environment and they perform here at the ranch and the feedlots, and we have developed a market,” Jones says.

Managing all three divisions of Briggs Ranches takes a significant amount of manpower. In addition to the current owners, there are five employees who keep everything running smoothly. Jones joined Briggs Ranches in 1983 under the late Mac Woods. As general manager, Jones directs day-to-day operations for all divisions of Briggs Ranches. Tol Cawley is the assistant manager and assists with management of the operation. Kelsey Cawley is responsible for all the cattle records. Ernest Garcia is the ranch foreman at the San Roque division and Euvencio Garcis (Butch) is the foreman at the San Carlos division.

Performance testing has always been a priority at Briggs Ranches. “There are two ranches that are truly pioneers in the Santa Gertrudis breed in performance testing – Wendt Ranches and Briggs Ranches,” Jones says. For many years, bull calves were gain tested at the ranch. Today, the operation contracts its gain testing to a feedlot. “This was done because of cost and labor. We still handle gathering average daily gain, yearling weight, scrotal growth, ultrasounding and DNA testing,” Jones explains. The crew also gathers information on heifer calves, including DNA

SANTA GERTRUDIS

Juniors

By Whitney Fuller, Secretary

Howdy. I'm Whitney Fuller and I'd like to say a few words about membership. How many times have you read a billboard or advertisement and thought "Wow, I should check that out"? Has it ever occurred to you that you are constantly advertising yourself and your beliefs when you meet new people? When you leave an interaction, people sometimes think about the things you said. Imagine if every time you talked to someone, you told them about the National Junior Santa Gertrudis Association (NJSJA). It would make a great impact on membership.

I'm sure most of you subscribe to something, whether it be Netflix, Spotify or Apple music; you most likely saw something that made you want to join. I personally know that when I started showing cattle, I saw great and friendly people in the NJSJA who persuaded me to join. I showed Santa Gertrudis for one year before I learned there were meetings and entertaining events to attend.

"The greater the loyalty of a group towards the group, the greater is the motivation among the members to achieve the goals of the group, and the greater the probability that the testing, yearling weight and ultrasound information. "With some of the new DNA testing available today, we are able to see trends in our cattle," Jones says. "These trends help us to make better decisions on breeding and marketing."

Briggs Ranches has been a long-time consignor and host for the Tri-Star Sale, which, according to Jones, is the longest-lasting production sale in the Santa Gertrudis breed. There are three ranches involved in the annual sale – Briggs Ranches, Harris River Bend and Corporon Acres.

"The cattle sold here will be some of the elite of the Santa Gertrudis breed," Jones says. The sale was strictly a female sale until 2004, when a bull sale was added. In 2012, the ranches partnered with AMS Marketing to broadcast the sale online via video. The addition of the video sale has allowed the ranches to reach a broader clientele than was previously available.

Nearly 80 years after R.W. Briggs, Sr. founded Briggs Ranches, the third generation of the Briggs family is now involved as owners of the family ranch. Today, the operation is owned by Robert W. Briggs and Louise Briggs Thurmond, who followed R.W. Briggs, Jr. as ranch owners. R.W. Briggs, Jr. owned Briggs Ranches until his death in 2008; he took over ownership of the ranch following the death of R.W. Briggs, Sr. in 1973. Continuing the ranching operation remains a priority for the new generation of Briggs Ranches owners.

With the owners' commitment to continue the ranching operation and a solid team in place to help with the day-to-day responsibilities, Jones looks forward to the future at Briggs Ranches. "At Briggs Ranches, we are proud of our past and our history with the Santa Gertrudis breed; however, we strive every day to be innovative and look forward to new ideas and programs to make our product better." 🐾

RIGHT: Managing the herd of Santa Gertrudis cattle at Briggs Ranches takes commitment from all five employees, who each have various responsibilities, such as gathering performance data, sorting cattle, feeding and more.

Longtime general manager Joe Jones surveys the operation on horseback.

NATIONAL SANTA GERTRUDIS Junior Association THE LEADING JUNIOR PROGRAM

An affiliate of Santa Gertrudis Breeders International

NATIONALS

June is junior nationals month and junior members come together to compete in purebred and STAR 5 divisions, and leadership contests like public speaking, cattle judging, photography and more. Annually, Santa Gertrudis breeders donate one heifer to the exhibitor of each class winner in the purebred show, and donate a heifer to the winner of the STAR 5 show. At the next year's junior nationals, the donated heifers compete for their own championship. The week-long event ends with a formal awards banquet.

See page 42 of this issue for a membership application.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Annually, the National Santa Gertrudis Youth Foundation awards approximately $30,000 in scholarships to high school seniors. Deserving youth vie for scholarships, and are recognized for their accomplishments at junior nationals.

GOALS

Held every other year for intermediates and seniors, the Gerts Ongoing Advanced Leadership Summit is a camp full of activities and workshops to aid junior Santa Gertrudis members in becoming effective, compassionate and influential leaders.

We are looking forward to the South Texas Heritage Sale.

The KING RANCH

*Your Source for the "Original" Santa
Gertrudis Genetics*

Established 1853

When building a program, you must start with a solid foundation. Whether you are breeding seedstock or commercial animals, you need to start with a quality product that will turn a profit. King Ranch purebred Santa Gertrudis and Santa Gertrudis-influenced genetics can provide just that. Our cattle were derived from the need for performance in feedyards and breeding programs, which means they must be fertile, efficient and profitable. The combination of Brahman and Shorthorn genetics has formed a cross that is hardy and effective in a wide range of climates and conditions. The King Ranch: where it all began.
